Is your community group interested in learning how to plan for future medical decisions? Honoring Choices® Virginia offers advance care planning presentations to community organizations in the Greater Richmond area.

Why is it important to plan?

It's Your Choice

If you don't choose someone to make decisions for you, Virginia law will. And, it may not be the person you would want. For example, an estranged spouse or family member could be called on to make decisions for you.

It's a Gift

People who know what their loved one would want them to do have an easier time making hard decisions.

It's About Getting the Care You Want

You are the expert on you. When you tell other people what is important to you, it helps them to get you the care you want even if you can't speak for yourself.

Life's Unpredictable

We can't anticipate everything. A good advance care plan helps prepare others to give you the care you want, even in situations that you can't imagine or that aren't written about in an advance directive.
